REPUBLICANS AND THEIR PRINCIPLES.

If a system to protect the manufacturers of the land at the expense of the other people is right, why should not the free coinage of silver, for the benefit of the silver producers, if for no other reason, be also right. Our Republican friends have advocated for a long time the protection of the manufacturers, by which the consumers of the manufacturers' articles paid more for them than the actual price should have been. A flat tax was added to protect our manufacturers.

"McKinley," said Mr. Benner, "depicted this gold and coin as being their chief means of protection to the farmer, but it was not so. The speaker's 'silver' immediately jumped from 79 to 92, but a temporary relief of that kind does not give any real protection."

The speaker, by reference to the relative volume of gold and silver in the world, proceeded to prove that the two metals could be coined at a ratio of 16 to 1, and that it did not affect the value of either.

Further on, on the same subject, the speaker said: "I do not have to say that legislation should place a dollar in the pocket of every man who has not earned it, as any other man is entitled to do."

"Mr. Benner further declared that he was anxious to have a coinage of silver, but that it was not in his power to do so, because he was not in a position to do so."

After saying that money was always to be had in the way of fast means or fast means, the speaker said: "It is the interest of the country and its operations was given to the people who have the right to coinage, and that the right to coinage is the right of the people."

After saying that the right to coinage is the right of the people, the speaker said: "It is the right of the people,

but it is not the right of the people,

but it is the right of the people,

but it is

ALL ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Very old furniture is much improved if washed with lime water, and a coat of oil immediately applied.

Wash brass ornaments with a solution of an ounce of rock alum dissolved in a pint of water. Wipe dry, then rub with soft leather and fine tripoli powder.

Cheep lemon peel, fine, mix with a little salt, and store in wide-mouthed bottles, to season meats and soups.

Wash flat-irons occasionally with warm water, to every two quarts of which has been added half a tablespoonful of melted lard. Wipe thoroughly, and set in a warm place till perfectly free from moisture.

An inexpensive but good cake icing is made by boiling three tablespoonsfuls of milk, setting it aside to cool, adding a teaspoonful of flavoring extract, and thickening with powdered or confectioner's sugar till it will spread nicely.

Test biting with washing soda; if it turns red it is made of Prussian blue, a compound of iron. Wash out soap and water, and around this is decomposed and causes rust spots.

The gummed margins of envelopes are excellent labels for fruit cans. Best old rubber rings in a strong solution of ammonia and water; it will soften them, and they may be used again with safety.

Waterproof glue is made by soaking common glue in water until the pieces are soft, but retain their shape when dissolved by gentle heat in unbolted linseed oil.

To apply labels to tin, use glue softened in water, then boiled in strong vinegar, and thickened while boiling to a stiff paste with wheat flour. A little quinine added will keep the compound from spoiling.

A few lumps of beeswax wrapped in old linen, and placed in close proximity to white satin or silk ribbons, will tend to prevent their turning yellow.

A teaspoonful of powdered borax sprinkled over a closet or kitchen shelf before it is covered with paper, will prevent vermin from getting between the shelves and the walls. A teaspoonful of borax added to cold starch gives linen a solid gloss and stiffness.

Spread a cloth on the bottom of the steamer; on it place a lot of stale bread, cover with another cloth, put on the cover and steam briskly ten or fifteen minutes. If served immediately, the bread will taste almost as fresh as when baked.

An excellent paper to tie up jelly-cups or preserve-jars is made by brushing paper over with boiled linseed oil and suspending it in the air to dry. Can be put up in the season, if tied closely over the top with several thicknesses of paraffine paper, will keep nearly as well as if sealed with tape.

To remove maple-sugar crystals from a glass jar, lay the jar on the side, put in a little warm water, and turn it from side to side for a few minutes. The jar is much less likely to crack than if held upright.

Salt dried in the oven, then reduced to a fine powder in mortar, if stored in airtight cans or boxes, will not harden even in the winter.

Wash black leather or mutton in sweet-skinoline, diluted with a few little water, using no soap. Brush in mink to which has been added a liberal allowance of baling. Dry wrong side out in the shade; dampen evenly, and iron on the wrong side.

Glycerine, thickened with litharge to the consistency of putty, makes a valuable cement. It resists the action of fire and water. It will stop cracks in iron-kettles or stone-jars, and hold lamps to standards. Let dry an hour or two after applying before using.

To freshen tan-colored shoes, dissolve a tablespoonful of salt in a little warm water, and add to a pint of cold water in which an ounce of salts of boron has been dissolved. Wash the shoes with this, and, when thoroughly dry, polish with soft flannel or a bit of silk.

Place a good-sized lump of unblended lime in the refrigerator occasionally. It will absorb the moisture, prevent mold and preserve the food. If there is a musty smell about the zinc which scales into quicklime, take a piece of watered soap and rub it over the zinc.

The drain pipe should be disinfected at least once a week in warm weather. Dissolve a nickel's worth of copperas in half a pintful of water, and gradually pour it down the pipe. An iron sink may be kept from rusting by applying with a brush a quarter of a pound of asphaltum in spirits of turpentine.

Drive a good-sized nail of unblended lime into the refrigerator occasionally. It will absorb the moisture, prevent mold and preserve the food. If there is a musty smell about the zinc which scales into quicklime, take a piece of watered soap and rub it over the zinc.

Do not neglect the slop or garbage pails. Empty regularly and thoroughly clean. The pail for kitchen slops should often be brushed with an old broom and hot soap suds. Once a week after the scrubbing throw in a little washing soda on hot water, and scrub with a whisk, broom or wing, disintegrating every part.

Sunday School Convention.

A marked feature of the State Sunday School Convention, to be held at Carlisle, October 13 to 15, will be the devotional meetings and Bible readings, led by Rev. W. M. Minshall, D. D., who is known throughout the whole country as one of the most inspiring of teachers and interesting of speakers. These bi-annual meetings are destined to be soothsayers to attract large numbers to attend. There is every indication that the Convention will be one of the largest in the history of the Association. Full particulars can be obtained by addressing the Rev. C. J. Kephart, D. D., Amville, Pa. It will be well to write early and get booked for entertainment at this great Convention.

The musical feature has always been an interesting one; this year, as on a former occasion, it will be in charge of Professor and Mrs. J. J. Lowe, both of whom are singers of repute and have great attractiveness. Prof. Lowe will conduct all of the musical exercises at the Convention.

FAMOUS MONUMENT DESTROYED.

The old Washington Monument, on a peak of South Mountain, near Boonsboro, Md., was struck by lightning and nearly demolished in the terrific storm Saturday night a week. It was erected in 1827 by the citizens of Western Maryland, and was rebuilt in 1852. A short time ago unknown parties loosened the base of it by exploding dynamite. The monument was about forty feet high, and from the observatory on the top of it a fine view of the valley could be obtained.

VISIONS OF GOLD IN BERRIES.

One containing gold has been discovered on the farm of Benjamin N. Yost, near Boyertown, Pa. Whether it will yield in paying quantities can only be determined by working with the best machinery, which has been ordered on a limited scale by Mr. Yost, backed by several Philadelphians.
